Niagara University: Summer Company Training Partner

Niagara University (NU), a private Catholic University, was established by members of the Vincentian order in Lewiston, New York, in 1856. The oldest of three Vincentian institutions in the United States, the programs provide students with highly credentialed faculty and small class sizes to develop graduates who are prepared for positions of responsibility in a way that embodies the vision of St. Vincent DePaul's compassion towards the poor and oppressed.

In 1984, NU became the first New York institution to offer its master of educational leadership under ministerial consent. Since then, it has graduated principals, superintendents and directors of education, members of provincial ministries and accrediting bodies that have served across the province. In 2007, NU responded to Ontario's teacher shortage by expanding its offerings to include a bachelor of professional studies in education program, which is accredited by the Ontario College of Teachers and offered under the consent of the Minister of Colleges and Universities. To date, this program has graduated more than 2000 teachers.

The move to Vaughan, Ontario, in 2019 consolidated NU's programs in education into a single site. Later that year, NU received ministerial consent to offer three new graduate programs to meet the community's needs. These included a master of science in information security and digital forensics, a master of business administration and a master of science in finance that prepares students for the highly technical and highly regulated world of international finance. NU's Faculty of Business Administration is accredited by the Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business (AACSB) – a designation attained by just five per cent of the world's business schools. This is achieved with a faculty dedicated to teaching excellence and publishing in internationally recognized journals, close connections with the business community, and a commitment to its mission.

As of 2022, NU is embarking on a new international student strategy. This approach aims to provide academic excellence to international students and assist them in their eventual residency pursuit in Vaughan through internships and other work opportunities. In addition, NU is currently developing two new academic programs for their Vaughan campus, including a master of criminal justice and a master of emergency and disaster management. Both programs are set to launch in 2024 upon receiving ministerial consent. In other exciting news, NU is doubling its physical footprint in Vaughan. In addition to serving as an academic institution, NU hopes to become a community hub for various events and business needs.

NU is proud to be in Vaughan and enact its mission by serving the community's needs. Through their pandemic speaker series, working with the Vaughan Chamber of Commerce and collaboration with the City of Vaughan on the Summer Company program, NU is contributing to developing the next generation of entrepreneurs and business leaders. For this year's Summer Company program, NU is facilitating university-level business workshops on customer relationship building, growth marketing and the fundamentals of business finance. At the end of the summer, each student will receive a certificate of completion from NU, recognizing their accomplishments over the summer.
